MARRIED LIFE ON $80 A MONTH

Mrs. Eva Leonard's Story of Married Life on $80 a Month—To Make Over Last Year's Frocks—Remodeled Skirts—Recipe, Orange Marmalade.

John, let himself in very quietly but not so noiselessly that little Jack did not hear him and come running to meet him with joyful cries of "Papa, papa!" clapping him around the knees. John stooped and kissed the upturned face in an absent manner and gave him his hat to carry to the closet.

"Hello!" called Molly's cherry voice. "Supper is almost ready."

John walked on to the kitchen door and looked out at the bustling little wife.

"Don't get any supper for me, dear," he began. "I can't eat anything tonight." Molly looked up with tress in her eyes and the pale face of her husband only increased her alarm.

"You are sick, John. We must call the doctor at once."

"No, I wish that were all." Her husband's tone had all the old bitter quality that had disappeared since her sickness. "Get your supper and put the boy to bed. I have something to tell you. I'll lie down till you are ready."

"Have you lost your job?" Molly's voice shook.

"Worse than that," was the discouraging answer.

Little Jack had his supper in the kitchen, and got only vague, unsympathetic answers to his stream of questions. He was hustled into bed with scant ceremony and with a troubled brow and palpitating heart Molly came and sat down by the lounge on which her husband had thrown himself. She lifted his limp hand into her lap and began chafing it between her own.

"Tell me what has happened, dear," she whispered, for he did not move.

John sat up with a slight groan. "I have had a knock down blow, my girl. I have no more spirit in me. Are you strong enough to face the worst?"

"Yes, go on," she breathed through parted lips, crushed with the suffering she saw in his face.

This afternoon Mr. Jaynes called me to the office, and I found Tyler closeted with him. As soon as I saw him a cold chill went all over me. I knew the time I had been dreading had come. Jaynes motioned me to a seat, and plunged right into the matter in hand. It seems that Tyler had come to him to report a shortage in the cash and they had talked the thing over and decided that I was the only person sufficiently down and out to be accused of the theft. John looked fixedly at Molly to see how she was going to take his news.

"Theft!" gasped the wife, springing wildly to her feet. "Oh! It isn't so, is it? You never took the money, did you?"

"Do you have to ask?" came in reproachful tones from the stricken man. "Julia Osgood did not have to inquire."

"Oh, John, forgive me," sobbed the girl, sinking on her knees and throwing her arms around her husband.

"I knew you would not do such a thing, only you were so hunted, so distracted for a while there before I was sick. I used to be afraid you would do something desperate. I have hurt you. I, who would so love to help you in your trouble."

"There, dear," said John, eased by the sight of the tears he could not shed. "You must not waste your strength this way. You will need it all before this business is over. We must try to calmly face the situation and see what is best to do."

The sobbing grew less and less violent as the distracted little woman clung to her husband. When she was quiet John went on:

"Julia Osgood said I must tell my influential friends, the Elisons. I said I could not, but I happened to remember that this thing is not going to be a secret long. The whole town, all the country, in fact, will know it in a few days, and I had rather they had my version than Tyler's."

The bitterness in his tone fairly grated.

Molly sprang to her feet. "I'll make you a cup of tea and after you have swallowed that we will go together to the Elisons. Mrs. Morse, next door, will sit with Jack. She offered to the other day."

(To be continued.)

MADE-OVER FROCKS.

It is not the fashion to make over frocks nowadays.

We used to buy expensive materials and then have the frocks into which they were made remodeled and sometimes made over a second time. We don't do that nowadays, usually.

We buy poorer materials than we used to buy and try to change more quickly than they used to change. Moreover, most people have fewer frocks than they used to have. They wear each frock continuously until it is worn out.

However, making over frocks often pays and some dressmakers have lately been advertising their desire to make over frocks. These are expensive dressmakers, with a high-priced trade, and the frock they make over are often imported models. They are real artists in the fashioning of fabrics into charming frocks, and they have the faculty of visualizing a remodeled frock after they have looked at and thought about the old frock for a little while.

This kind of remodeling surely pays. A practically new frock results, up to the last minute in its details. Nowadays a woman of fashion wears her frocks for such a short time that nobody remembers their colors and fabrics and colors are fashioned in different combinations from their original ones.

Even without the aid of one of these dressmakers, who make remodeling a specialty, it is quite possible to have attractively made-over frocks. The season's styles lend themselves especially to such remodeling.

There are, for instance, the various jumper styles. The old material can be fashioned either into the jumper or into the blouse under it. Suppose there is an old black net frock. After it has been ripped and pressed and, if necessary, cleaned, the good separated from that which is torn, the net can be made into a blouse, with the best part in the sleeves and front. Then you can buy enough silk to make the jumper and the foundation of the skirt. There can be a flaring overskirt of the net, long, or short, pointed or straight at the bottom, according to the amount of the material.

There is also possibility for making over the skirt with a very wide hem of contrasting material. Sleeves, or at least cuffs and collars, can be made of the same material as the hem, and new material may be bought either for this combination or for the rest of the frock.

ORANGE MARMALADE.

Cut the fruit in halves and remove the pulp with a spoon. Take one lemon, or five oranges and prepare in the same way. Cut the shells of the oranges in two and scrape out the white lining, and put the skins on to boil in water enough to cover them. Weigh the pulp, take half as much sugar and simmer together for 15 minutes. The pulp is transparent and tender take it up, and by putting several pieces together, cut it quickly into the narrowest strips. Mix with the pulp and sugar; cook till very thick and put in glasses, and seal when cold.

SOCIAL EVENT.

One of the week's events was the Kensington given by Mesdames C. H. Pearson and J. A. Bennett to which the social club of the L. A. to O. R. C. were invited. The affair was held at the home of Mrs. C. H. Pearson, 2521 Jackson avenue, and during the afternoon rousing games were enjoyed and honors were given Mrs. C. A. Malan, Mrs. Joe Mignault and Mrs. J. D. Robb.

The hostess served a nicely prepared luncheon, covers being laid for the following:

Mesdames John Shields, D. J. Revo, D. A. Cramer, William Wilson, John Holden, C. K. Wynans, L. Smith, Earl White, S. Muller and Sena Tracy. Guests of the club were Mrs. William Stone, Mrs. E. Thorne and Mrs. Thomas Malm.

RETURN HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Perkins of 2568 Brinker avenue returned home yesterday after a month's tour of California. They report having had a most enjoyable trip.

FROM OAKLAND.

Mrs. Lillie Parosworth of Oakland, Cal., is visiting in Ogden a few days at the home of her mother, Carolina Adneson, 344 Washington avenue, and her brother, Christopher Adneson, 376 Washington avenue. Mrs. Parosworth was a resident of Ogden a number of years prior to taking up her residence in California and has many friends in the city.

Before their marriage, Mr. Parosworth was in charge of the ladies' tailoring department of the W. H. Wright & Sons' store and he is now proprietor of one of the prominent ladies tailoring establishments in Oakland. During his residence in Ogden, Mr. Parosworth was also well and popularly known through his musical accomplishments, being the possessor of a remarkably fine baritone voice.

RETURN FROM COAST.

Tomorrow afternoon and evening, the Ladies' Aid society of the German Evangelical church on Jefferson avenue and Twenty-third street will hold their bazaar in the church basement to which everyone is invited.

Aprons and various articles suitable for Christmas gifts are to be displayed and in addition delicious refreshments will be served, and a social in the evening enjoyed.

FRENCH SOCIETY.

The French speaking members of the Mormon church met in a social at the Ninth ward meeting house December 6, which was the result of an organization being formed by the elders who have labors as missionaries among the French speaking people. The organization was perfected with Fred W. Hodgson as president, Grant C. Brown as vice president and W. Earl Read as secretary and treasurer. Under whose direction the affair took place. Musical numbers were rendered and talks by James L. Barker of the Weber academy, Alphonse Dieu and President John Watson of the Weber stake. Professor Barker told of a Mr. Paillard, French professor of languages, whom he met while in Paris, and who was killed fighting for his country at the "Dardanelles." Mr. Paillard was well known by the elders, having assisted the elders translate tracts and booklets. Two years ago, while Elder Read was in Paris working at headquarters, Mr. Paillard spent several hours with him and other elders translating the religious literature. President John Watson expressed his surprise to find so many of the French speaking people together. He spoke of his relatives who can be traced back to Reims. One of whom was buried in Antwerp. Mr. Alphonse Dieu, a French convert who has been in America for about four years, related an incident pertaining to his conversion to Mormonism. Two elders, one day, while traveling met Mr. Dieu (God) and after a long talk with him left with the

PIONEER WOMAN DIES.

American Fork, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Ingeborg Catherine Olsen, 86 years of age, died at the family residence in the First ward, this city, today from old age and general debility. She was the widow of H. P. Olsen, whose death occurred more than fifty years ago.

Mrs. Olsen was born in Denmark, October 13, 1829, and together with her husband, emigrated to America in 1854, crossing the Atlantic by sailing vessel by way of New Orleans and coming up the Mississippi river by boat, and across the plains by ox teams from the Missouri river.

In 1856 they were called upon to go to the Carson valley, Nevada, to settle that country, but were recalled a year or so later upon the arrival of Johnson's army. In 1865 the family moved on the Muddy, in southern Utah, at which place Mrs. Olsen died the same year. Mrs. Olsen, with the children, returned to American Fork, and made this city her home up to the time of her death. She is survived by two sons, Ammon Olsen of this city and G. B. Olsen of San Francisco.

PROHIBITION FOR OREGON UPPHELD

Olympia, Ore., Dec. 10.—The state supreme court affirmed today the decision of the lower court upholding the validity of the initiative measure adopted by the voters at the election of November, 1914, prohibiting the sale of liquor in the state after January 1, 1916.

Six judges joined in the decision upholding the lower court, two others concurred and Judge Bauman, who was appointed to the bench after the hearing was begun, did not sit in the case.

WOUNDED WOMAN IS MAKING RECOVERY

Salt Lake, Dec. 11.—An inquest over the body of F. B. Ahrold, who committed suicide Wednesday night after seriously wounding Mrs. Cornelia Crenshaw, the woman who was pretended by him to be his wife, will be held just as soon as Mrs. Crenshaw recovers sufficiently to be able to testify. She is now lying at the county hospital where it was stated last night that her condition was favorable for recovery.

Ahrold's body is at the Qualtrough-Alcott morgue, where it will be held until after the inquest. A telegram was yesterday sent by the undertakers to Ahrold's father, J. C. Ahrold, Des Moines, Iowa, but no reply had been received up to a late hour last night. The wife of the dead man, who resides in Denver, has informed the authorities here that she is too poor to have the body of her husband brought back to Denver. She has three small children, whom she has been compelled to place in the orphan's home at Denver.

DEER KILLED BY TRAIN.

Kemmerer, Wyo., Dec. 10.—An Oregon Short Line train last night ran into a bunch of twelve deer near Nugget and killed two of the animals. The herd appeared dazed by the locomotive headlight and made no attempt to leave the track. The animals killed are a large buck and a doe. A few days ago a gasoline spreader ran into a herd of fourteen deer in the same vicinity.

BRAINERD CONDUCTS CHURCH SERVICE.

Park City, Dec. 10.—The Rev. Frank G. Brainerd was in Park City Wednesday and held services in the Congregational church. He will be in Park City again to hold services in three weeks.
